RESPONSE TO AMENDMENT

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-13 and 17-19, and 24-26 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 11/26/2004, regarding claims 20-23, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The applicants argued features, i.e., a graphical user interface for a mobile communication device used for setting and viewing notification characteristics for the ringer device of the mobiles, including notification setting display screen that enables a user to set the notification characteristics to a certain setting for a predetermined duration and a notification status display that enables a user to view current notification characteristics for the mobile device where in one embodiment the user can view pre-event characteristics, reads upon Rydbeck in view of Pierry as follows.

Rydbeck is discussing a method for handling incoming calls of a mobile communication device when a user is in restricted places such as meetings. Rydbeck shows a mobile communication device with display and programs that display to the user options for setting modes of the device including ringing characteristics. Therefore, Rydbeck is showing the limitation of “user interface for a mobile communication device used for setting and viewing notification properties for the ringer device of the mobiles”. Rydbeck is discussing, a several displays including one that allows setting of the type of ring, i.e., audible, tactile, visual, etc., and when that ring will be applied. Therefore, Rydbeck discloses the limitation of “a notification status display that enables a user to view current notification properties for the mobile device where in one embodiment the user can view prevent properties”. Rydbeck discussed viewing and changing the properties for duration, however, did not particularly discuss the characteristics. Therefor, Pierry modified Rydbeck to show the characteristics, e.g., changing the audible alert from a ring to a chime, could be changed. With regard to the limitation of pre-event characteristics Rydbeck discusses showing how the phone is set up prior to meeting mode.

Regarding the applicant’s argument that Rydbeck does not show duration, the argument is not persuasive in that Rydbeck is showing during meetings, which has duration.

Regarding the applicant’s argument that Rydbeck does not show pre-event notifications, Rydbeck discloses the user can view all setting and thus how the phone is set prior to the meetings.

As a result the argued limitations read upon Rydbeck in view of Pierry.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 20, and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rydbeck et al. (6,574,471) in view of Pierry et al. (US 2001/049275 A1).

Consider claims 20 and 23 Rydbeck discloses a graphical user interface for use with a mobile communication device to set or view notification properties for a ringer device of the mobile communication device (see col. 5 lines 15-20, col. 5 lines 1-30, col. 6 lines 24-40, see col. 1 lines 15-25, col. 2 lines 44-67, col. 3 lines 40-65, col. 6 lines 64-67, col. 5 lines 5-30, and col. 6 lines 24-40). Rydbeck discloses said graphical user interface comprising: a notification setting display screen (figure 5) that enables a user to set the notification properties to a certain setting for a predetermined duration; and a notification status display screen that enables a user to view current notification properties for the mobile communication device (see col. 7 lines 15-20, col. 5 lines 1-67, and col. 6 lines 1-67, and col. 7 lines 1-18).

Art Unit: 2684

Rydbeck discloses setting notification properties (see col. 6 lines 24-40), however does not specifically disclose notification characteristics. Pierry teaches notification characteristics (see sections [0046], [0047], and [0054]).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the invention of Rydbeck, and change notification characteristics, as taught by Pierry, thus allowing the notification to be targeted to a particular situation, as discussed by Pierry ([0006], [0007]).

5. Claims 21 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rydbeck in view of Pierry as applied to claims 20, and 23, above, and further in view of Kraft et al. (6,463,278).

Consider claims 21 and 22, Rydbeck discloses the method and apparatus, as modified by Pierry above, wherein the notification characteristics of the phone can be changed depending on the calendar including date time and profile (see Rydbeck figure col. 6 lines 24-67, col. 5 lines 1-30, col. 7 lines 19-67, and Pierry sections [046]-[0054]). Rydbeck and Pierry do not specifically disclose ring volume. Kraft teaches ring volume (see col. 3 lines 1-67 and col. 4 lines 1-59).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the invention of Rydbeck and Pierry, and have the notification volume settable, as taught by Kraft, thus allowing a user to set the modes of the phone when in a particular situation, as discussed by Kraft (col. 2 lines 12-22).

Consider claim 3, Rydbeck discloses the type is one of audible or vibration (see col. 6 lines 24-40).

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

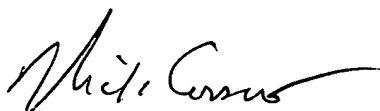

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
